What Is Going On Tonight Vaudeville and Motion Pictures at he Auditorium. Moving Pictures at Colonial Theatre. ANNOUNCEMENTS

A man went by our office last evening and stopping, said: "Is that a safety raxor?" pointing to The Frantz Premier. It never occurred to us before, but do you know that is exactly what it is—it raised the dirt with perfect safety and no particle of dust in the air. Telephone 553-5 for demonstration.

COLONIAL THEATRE. The Christian, Eight Reel Feature, for Monday and Tuesday Only.

Without question, the most profound sensation of the year is the magnificent dramatic feature film at the Colomial Monday and Tuesday next. This film fairly staggers one with its sumptuousness and sublime motive, the story of which is so well known as not to need any description; suffice it to say that Edith Storey, the Bernhardt of the screen, plays the unexplainable Glory to perfection. Earl Williams, the dean of the screen, is seen in the strong role of John Storm, a part exactly suited to him both physically and dramatically. This story of the redemption of an actress is so intense that it is impossible to believe that it is a film drama, showing more than 500 scenes and 3,000 people. In the support of the stars is the finest cast of Vitagraph players ever seen Seats on sale at the box office after 10 a. m. daily. Phone 355. For today the bill comprises His First Case, Lubin; Slavery of Foxicus, comedy: The Peasant's Lie, Blograph, and White Lies, an immense Essanay drama.

DAVIS THEATRE.

Way Down East, Matines and Night,

Way Down East, Matinee and Night Today.

All playgoers are familiar with the story of Way Down East, which comes to the Davis today. Way Down East has been presented in nearly every city and town in the United States and Canada during the past 19 years and in presenting the play again this season its producers are only complying with the demand universally made and in keeping with the usual custom and have provided the same competent cast and elaborate production. The success which has attended this famous rural drama would have been of a phenomenal nature under any circumstances, but considering the number of years the piece has been constantly before the public, it is really astonishing. Of course, it is true that plays modeled closely after nature have a lease on life that is not characteristic of less faithfully drawn works, for while one may admire the complex situations and sharp wit of modern comedy, it is the simple episodes of heart-penetrating rower that is carried heartedy, it is the simple episodes of heart-penetrating power that is carried home

The environments in which the char-The environments in which the characters of Way Down East live and move is of a nature to cause many a country bred man and woman to go salloping back through the years to the well remembered scenes of their childhood. But Way Down East appeals to no limited class, but to all alike; its quaint pictures of rural life, inoffensive country companionship and homely sentiment grips the affection of every man and woman without respect move is of a nature to cause many a country bred man and woman to go galloping back through the years to the well remembered scenes of their childhood. But Way Down East appeals to no limited class, but to all alike; its quaint pictures of rural life, inoffensive country companionship and homely sentiment grips the affection of every man and woman without respect to class or creed, and it seems quite useless to speculate upon the day when the familiar story will lose its charm. A cast of exceptional merit will present the famous play this season. William Lawrence, best remembered for the past ten years as Joshua Whitcomb in Denman Thompson's The Old Homestead, will enact the role of Squire Bartlett, and the role of Anna Moore is in the capable hands of Scileen O'Malley. All of the delightful characters and familiar faces that have delighted audiences season after season will be seen again, not forgetting the well known musical features. The scenic investiture is entirely new, with the usual careful attention to detail for which the management is famous. characters and familiar faces that have delighted audiences season after season will be seen again, not forgetting the well known musical features. AT THE AUDITORIUM.

Trouble Makers' Company Monday. The Trouble Makers, a musical farce omedy with 25 people in the cast, rincipally girls, and running a full we hours, will be the attraction at the inditorium theatre for the first three Anditorium theatre for the first three days of next week. This is the same Anditorium theatre for the first three days of next week. This is the same show and the same cast which played this house last December and which broke all box office records for this house, playing to capacity business for three nights and turning several hundred people away. This season John Quigley, who presents the show, has spared no efforts in staging the attraction and has a complete line of new scenery and effects as well as all new costumes. New songs and lokes have been put into the show and the principal funmakers, Messrs. Burke and Baron, as the two tramps, Percy and Harold, will make two hours of continual laughter, without a dull moment. The play contains a triple extract of double distilled laughter and is a clean cut, high class, bright, lively performance and one you can take your wife, mother, sister or sweetheart to without biushing—but not without laughing.

The show will open at 7.20 with the Frey o' Hearts, which will be followed immediately at 3 o'clock by the Frouble Makers in two acts of one hour each. The orchestra will be reserved at 20c, the orchestra circle reserved at 29c, and the balcony will not be reserved at 19c. Tickets are on sale at the box office and at the Audi-prium notel now from 3 a.m. to a borium notel now from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m., and are selling very rapidly for all three nights.

Today the usual vandeville and picture bill will be run, including Marion & Cumberland in an exhibition of the atost, modern denting

POETRY

THE MOTHERS OF SOLDIERS "Where is my child?" a mother ories,
"Where is the son I bors?"
"O! Give him back, ye battlefields,
I raised him not for war!

"I watched him in his garden play, A happy, lovesome sprite, They took him from me, O my Godi "Twas but a month last night."

They put a rifle in his hand,
A cap upon his head.

Now fight, they said, 'attack you foe,'
And now my boy is dead!' "Where is my child?" the mothers crys
"Where are the sons we bore?
O give them back, ye blood-red fields,
We bore them not for war."

heard their agonizing moans It came from Europe's shore; It rent the very air with pain, At my heart strings it tore.

It sank into my soul with fire,
I heard it in my dreams,
That cry which started with the wan,
And will not end, it seems.

From Germany's bright citadel, From Servia's vineciad farm, From France grape-trellised in One wild and long slarm. The mothers of Great Britain's sons, Madonnas of the West, The North, the South, the very East, Each love their sons the best.

From Austria's wild mountain eide, From Russia's whitened plains, From India e'en, and far Japan, Oh! who can tell the pains?

Dear God! the mothers of the world Denounce the war fiends' work; Be it in German guise, or French, Great Britain, or the Turk. Give back their sons, let Peace, white robed, In Europe dwell for aye, The mothers of the world protest: "In war must our sons die?" L'ENVOI.

O God! put out Thy hand and stay
The cannon's shricking roar;
Silence the guns, command the world
To live in peace once more!
